Foreword

Dear Founders,

You have heard about billion dollar businesses emerging from bootstrapped dorm room ideas, college dropouts building the next industry disrupting tech unicorn, or Silicon Valley ideas getting acquired by top Fortune 500's.

But as founders, you know that building a business brings lots of unexpected twists. And the one thing that is needed forever is learning.

Let me put a pin on one in a million, Brad Keywell, the current CEO of Uptake Technologies, a predictive analytics software company and previously Groupon, the global e-commerce marketplace. You might think such an accomplished businessman has little left to learn. There is a page on his personal website that reads, in full: "Brad loves to learn. If you'd like to teach him something, get in touch."

Over the last 14 years, at YourStory, we have been champions, the chronicler and the catalyst for each person in the country dreaming and daring to tread the road to entrepreneurship. From seeding the first thought of inspiration in a would-be entrepreneur's mind, to enabling their first belief capital to spotlighting future Unicorns, we have touched over 10 million lives. And we have learnt.

That journey has taught us a lot about the real learnings in entrepreneurship. We are launching YourStory University to bring these learnings to every entrepreneur in the country. You no longer need to find it out the hard way. Our vision is to shorten the unknown roads that entrepreneurship takes us on. And to give very simple, practical, outcome based solutions for the everyday challenges you face.

It was an audacious dream to design and execute a digital university for founders, especially when the space is already saturated with so much content. We, however, understand this better than anyone as we have seen startups succeed and fail in the last 14 years.

Our first program is the Panchatantra of Entrepreneurship. This would be the first-of-its-kind, practical, outcome focused, story-based learning program for future-ready entrepreneurs and would-be entrepreneurs focusing on the 5 underlying principles of entrepreneurship success based on our 14 years of learning.

The 3-month program would include video sessions by startup founders and experts, curated checklists and frameworks that can save entrepreneurs' time and inspirational stories to keep closing the loop. It will be offered in English and in Hindi now, and later, in other languages as well. This comes at an hour when the government's push for 5G, semiconductors and transformation through digital services is going to boost India's transition to the next 'Techade' and 5 trillion economy. At the helm of it all, there's an urgent need to create jobs- and most importantly, job creators. And our vision is to help create 5 million such job-creators, with you.

Apart from founders, our program can also be used by companies and organizations as a part of leadership training on storytelling, product, audience, networking and adaptability. We will keep updating it to stay current on best practices and industry needs.

Come build your story, with YourStory.

Our learnings

- Entrepreneurship is the biggest pathway for wealth and job creation in India, across villages, towns, cities.
- But there are different routes to entrepreneurship, beyond the much-celebrated Unicorn stories. Our understanding of the ecosystem has shown us the real help entrepreneurs need to build scalable and lasting businesses. YourStory University is designed to solve that gap.
